GRIM FIGHTING IN POHANG SECTOR

Kigye Changes Hands Third Time In Two Days

Tokyo, Aug. 30.

Under heavy in-shore shelling by American warships, a crack Communist battalion late tonight smashed into the South Korean line north of Pohang on the east coast.

Behind this spearhead at least one Communist division was reported to be waiting to lunge through for a major attempt to sweep on down the coast road to Pusan.

Britain's Concern Over Formosa

London, Aug. 30.

The British Prime Minister today said that the United States should not be misled by the Communist propaganda which claims that the United States is not interested in Formosa.

The Prime Minister said that the United States should be aware of the fact that the United States is not interested in Formosa.

The Prime Minister said that the United States should be aware of the fact that the United States is not interested in Formosa.

About 10 miles north-west, South Korean troops, driven out of Kigye, were fighting off fierce attacks a mile and a half south of the town as darkness fell.

Intelligence officers said that Kigye, which changed hands three times in 48 hours, was believed to be held by a regiment of North Korean second-line security troops, who were maintaining steady pressure southward.

At the same time, Communist forces were reported to be advancing southward from the North Korean border.

BRITISH SERVICEMEN TO GET FAR MORE PAY

Private Nearly Double

London, Aug. 30.

British Servicemen are to get more pay and compulsory national service (conscription) in the armed forces is to be extended from 18 months to two years.

These measures to build up Britain's defences were announced by the Prime Minister, Mr. Clement Attlee, in a nation-wide broadcast tonight.

From September 1, a private and his equivalent ranks in the Army and Air Force will be paid 40 shillings a week instead of his present 28 shillings. He will be able to earn as much as 56 shillings to 60s. 6d. weekly after gaining proficiency awards.

Increases for N.C.O.s will range from 21 shillings a week for Corporals to twice that amount for senior N.C.O.s.

Increases for officers from the most junior rank up to Brigadier or his equivalent will range from £102 to £145 a year. For a Second Lieutenant, this will mean pay at 17s. 6d. a day instead of the present 13s. a day.

The women's Services will get increases amounting to about three-quarters of those for men. A fully proficient Private soldier will, with the new increases have about £4. 6s. 6d. a week for himself after he has been fed, clothed and housed. This will make him better off than the average civilian worker for the figure is exclusive of marriage or children's allowances.

Volunteers for Royal Air Force air-crews are to be attracted to short-service engagements with offers of gratuities at the end of their service of £700 to £1,500 for officers and £250 to £500 for other ranks. Other-Bank pilots and navigators and £250 to £400 for air-crew signallers, engineers and gunners.

Recruits needed

An extra six months in the Forces for Britain's 18-year-old conscripts has been fore-shadowed since the Government announced its £3,400,000,000 defence plan last month.

At Mr. Attlee's broadcast tonight recruits for Britain's regular Forces "have not been coming forward in sufficient numbers."

He appealed to British youth to come forward for service "to your country and to the cause of world peace."

More recruits were needed for the regular and territorial (part-time) service and he announced that the Royal Air Force would follow the decision of the Army and Navy in postponing the release of some regular Servicemen.

"Our immediate need is for a greater number of fully trained men," he said.

Repetition Of A Fable

Hongkong Troops Like Korea But Not The Coffee

By Robert Vermillion

With the British Forces in Korea, Aug. 30.

Korea would be a nicer place than Hongkong — if it weren't for the coffee. This was the opinion of the men of the Middlesex Regiment and the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, as they settled down in their first bivouac near the Korean fighting front.

Except for the morning coffee, which is revolting to the British troops, the first United Nations troops to join the Americans and South Koreans in this police action, found Korea good so far, but had no illusions about the future.

Lt. Col. A.M. Man, the Middlesex commander, opined that Korea is a "much pleasanter" place than Hongkong, where both battalions spent 10 months. "We really are trained for this," he said, pointing to the rugged hills around him. "I've spent 10 months up and down hills in territory I had heard of as almost exactly the same terrain."

The men of the Highlanders and Middlesex are in an apple orchard on the east side of a rocky dry riverbed.

Nineteen-year-old Middlesex Private Peter Jones was delighted with the American C. Rations, which include such delicacies as Vienna sausage, chicken and vegetable meat and beans, pork and beans, spaghetti and meat sauce, cookies, real chocolate, and powdered instant coffee. "Very good your rations are," Jones said. "Just had what you call frankfurters for dinner. Very good."

He replied: "That's another matter. Can't drink it."

STOP THEM

Jones thought long before he declared his views on the subject of this police action in Korea. "It's a good thing to stop them now," he said.

Corporal Stewart Cox from Dundee, also of the Middlesex, and a regular nearing the end of his five-year enlistment, said that what he had seen of Korea so far was better than Palestine or Hongkong, but he understood that "this might not be the case later on."

As he turned away to battalion headquarters, Cox said: "Everything is okay so far. I hear tea is coming up this afternoon."

Further up the stream bed, where the Highlanders were digging in, the men were just having their noon meal.

Sergeant-Major James Gray, of Glasgow, Scotland, was satisfied with everything so far, except the coffee. "Can't drink it," he said. "I've introduced us around to a group of private who were all bare from the waist up and bronzed by the Hongkong sun. All hated coffee and longed for tea, but

Australian Troops Pass Through Manila

Manila, Aug. 31.

A contingent of 14 Australian expeditionary forces en route to join the United Nations troops in Korea spent a night in Manila after their arrival from Japan under a Gantus Empire Airways plane yesterday afternoon and continued to their destination this morning.

The group of unannounced troops, composed of the third and fourth battalions of the 16th and 17th regiments, were en route to Korea. Previously two groups of Australian troops, stopped here en route.—United Press.

Severe Floods In Indo-China

Saigon, Aug. 30.

Severe floods have cut off the vital 43-mile French supply route from the port of Haiphong to the capital of Tonkin, according to press reports reaching here.

Several weeks of monsoon rains have swollen the Red River to 31 feet above normal at Hanoi and inundated vast rice-producing delta areas.

The highway road is already dotted with submerged vehicles and will be closed to truck traffic for at least ten days.

Despite the reported flood conditions, the French authorities announced that important combined operations are under way against guerrilla forces in the Red River delta.—United Press.

No Grounds For Mercy

London, Aug. 30.

Mr. John Strachey, the War Minister, said today that he had decided that no grounds for mercy existed for the three British soldiers sentenced to death by court martial in Egypt for murdering an Egyptian.

The death sentences had received his "most careful and anxious consideration," but he decided that there were no extenuating circumstances sufficient to recommend to the King the exercise of mercy.

Status Of New Guinea

THE discussions now going on at the Hague between the Australian Minister for External Affairs, Mr. Percy Spender, and the Netherlands Foreign Minister, Dr. Stikker, regarding the future status of New Guinea, are not likely to run into difficulties. Australia has already made her position crystal clear. She fully supports Dutch resistance to Indonesian claims to sovereignty over the island and contends that they have no validity. Settlement of the dispute between the Netherlands and Indonesia, however, will not be such an easy matter. Thus far it has not been possible for members of the joint commission appointed to explore the problem to reach agreement on a solitary point. The Dutch members have issued an independent report and Indonesia has sent a further delegation to the Netherlands to thrash out their case and attempt to discover a solution favourable to Djakarta. The basis upon which the two governments approach the question is so different that it is difficult to see how a satisfactory compromise can be reached. The Indonesians have made the extension of their rule to New Guinea a part of their whole appeal to nationalism. The Indonesian President, Dr. Soekarno, has presented the claim to the country as something of a crusade and has pledged his Government to prosecute it unrelentingly. The Dutch, on the other hand, are not prepared to turn New Guinea over to the Indonesians because they are not convinced that the newly independent Indonesian Government is in a position properly to discharge the responsibilities that rule over New Guinea would entail. They point out, quite accurately, that while New Guinea is territorially in the general Indonesian area, it is not, and never has been, integrally a part of what is now the area of the Indonesian Government. Most important from the Dutch point of view, however, is the fact that inhabitants of New Guinea are still a backward people. There is no affinity between them and the Javanese. Moreover, there is no reason to suppose that the Indonesian Government has the resources or the skills to do for them what the Dutch can do and are willing to do. New Guinea could very properly be a field for President Truman's Point Four application, but the chance of its being so used would be far more certain if the area remained under Dutch rather than passed under Indonesian rule. An important factor in the case is the attitude of Australia. Australia administers Papua, the eastern half of the big island, and so is vitally concerned with the disposition of the western, or Dutch, half. The Australians, despite their sympathetic attitude toward the Indonesian Government, are violently opposed to Indonesian rule for western New Guinea. There is no suggestion of "imperialism" or "old colonialism" in either the Dutch or the Australian attitude. All of New Guinea has been a "trusteeship," in a sense, for a number of years and the "trustees" believe that it should continue to be so.

Soviet Planes For Korea?

Washington, Aug. 30.

The United States Defense Department today reported building activity near airfields in North Korea, suggesting a spokesman said that the Communists expected to increase their "negotiable air strength."

American pilots on reconnaissance flights had noted new runways and signs that the North Koreans were extending runways and building facilities "apparently for aircraft we know nothing about."

Similar work was noted several weeks ago but there did not appear to be signs of increased air activity by the North Koreans, he added.—Reuter.

Strike Fever In Bombay

Bombay, Aug. 30.

The police took up positions at strategic points throughout Bombay today on the eve of a general "token strike" which threatens to paralyze industries, communications and transport in the city tomorrow.

The general strike has been called by the Indian Socialist Party in sympathy with 250,000 textile workers of the city's 60 mills, who walked out 17 days ago.

Bombay's Home Minister, Mr. Morarji Desai, summoned officials, police chiefs and heads of the city's transport services to a conference today to work out measures to keep the services functioning with at least a skeleton staff.

He told a press conference later that if the strikers behave peacefully tomorrow the Government will not "interfere" with them beyond peacefully removing them whenever they obstruct loyal workers.

Mr. Desai was confident that the attempts to paralyze the city's transport systems would not succeed as the "had other ways of running buses and trams."

Bombay's two electric train systems, which daily carry half a million citizens to work, are expected to function normally.—Reuter.

Religion And Politics Mix Not

The Hague, Aug. 30.

The Dutch Government today said that religious considerations must not be allowed to enter into the talks on the future status of Western New Guinea.

The Government added in an official statement that it could not agree with a suggestion in the Dutch section of the mixed Fact-finding Commission's report that one reason for not transferring New Guinea to Indonesia was that it was doubtful if an Islamic Government would be the best medium for carrying on the country's educational programme.

Religious matters must not be mixed up with political and international law, the Government said. Both Indonesia and Holland recognized the importance of the freedom of religion—and practised it.—Reuter.

Easier Times For The Foreigner

London, Aug. 30.

Representatives of British commercial concerns in Communist China said today that demands for remittances from London had practically ceased because of the Peking Government's easing of taxation. These remittances were until lately necessary to pay high taxes and unearned wages exacted by Communist officials.

But the commercial representatives said it now appears that the Peking government has decided to let foreign merchants earn enough profit to keep them in existence in China, at least temporarily.

All available information from Shanghai and other parts of China indicate that the Peking government is showing no discrimination at present in its treatment of commercial interest and that Chinese businessmen are being treated in the same way as foreigners.

There's A Place For Lace

By Alice Alden

THERE'S a place for lace this summer in almost any aspect, as these models show.

This is the year of original swim suit fashions, not so much in cut or design, as in new fabrics. Something very new, and serviceable, as well as pretty and feminine, is the bathing suit made of lace. Shown at left Carolyn Schurer gives a brand-new treatment to a one-piece bathing suit by making it of patterned beige cotton lace backed with brown satin, and deftly shaped into a halter top and boy's type shorts. Linking the two is a length of brown satin softly draped into a wide belt.

LOVELY lace mints its beauty over fine fashions, both as a dress fabric and as trimming. Bedford uses lace for one of the season's most delightful of blouses (below). A deep yoke of cowweby black Chantilly lace lends drama to a blouse of white silk chiffon. The motif is repeated in a fan of lace spanning the lower half of the blouse, and pointing up the generous sleeve, caught at the wrist. The tiniest of white collars, bound deeply in lace tops the blouse.

THE delicate, lace picture hat requires its very own hair-do to do it justice. Working as a team, an expert hair-stylist and a good milliner can produce some charming effects. Jon Hall designed this lovely hat of lace white straw cloth (below) tied with velvet, lower holding tiny flower clusters. Guro styled the hair. Neither too long nor too short, neat and not too set, it frames the face and complements the hat.

THOSE lovely, aren't they, young American Singers! Fashion conscious too, so that they appear as pleasing to the eye as they are to the ear. Nadine Conner, soprano star of the Metropolitan Opera Company, posed for us in her new "Spanish Infanta" dress, designed for her by Howard Shoup. The gown is of white tulle, with lace-trimmed off-shoulder neck-line—princess style with small hoops making a side pannier effect in Infanta silhouette. Iridescent sequins are scattered over the lace panels.

DAILY ROUTINE FOR BEAUTY

By HELEN FOLLETT

THERE are times when a woman looks in a mirror and realizes that she has not been keeping up with her good-looks lessons. She knows what she should do to be in tip-top form but, somehow, other matters have intervened and she has let herself go. It won't do. Every woman possesses beauty and can improve herself.

If you feel that you are not precisely as young and lovely as you once were, ask yourself a few questions and answer truthfully. Solemn thought about personal appearance is in order now and then. If you look tired, it may be because you are not getting enough sleep, or have lost interest in food. Remember you can't keep your motor running without fuel and it must be the right kind.

What happened to your hair brush and why don't you find it and use it every night? It is the only way to keep your hair healthy and lustrous. There's that jar of cream you bought, and haven't even opened. Get busy with it, see your skin bloom and look younger.

Proper Care

Even the most delicate, most expensive ones are good investments if properly cared for. If neglected, a crinkled chiffon handkerchief, popular this season, may shrink up a trifle when washed, but it will pull easily into shape by hand. But don't ever iron them, for this destroys the crinkle, and the crinkle is there to obviate ironing.

Other hankies, the new popular circle ones, and sheer cottons and linens, don't require pressing either. If away from home without an iron, after washing, just spread them on the wall, over the edge of the bathtub, or against a mirror. But be sure that the surface is spotlessly clean, otherwise you may have to reckon with a re-sudsing job.

"Square Off" Corners

Do be very careful to "square off" the corners, the mark of a finely laundered kerchief. Round handkerchief corners, like round shoulders, are not becoming to a well-groomed lady! It may be easier to accomplish this with the touch of an iron. If so, don't erase the kerchief, but just fold it lightly. When ironing the circle or scalloped ones, work from the center out to the edge. Embroidery and monograms should always be pressed on the wrong side on a padded board to also the pattern.

Now coloured handkerchiefs should be washed separately; in case the dye bleeds a bit, it won't stain white things. Nor should the bright, gay coloured ones be left rolled up while damp, for the colour may smear.

Exercises

Why can't you get a brisk walk every day, pump your lungs full of fresh air, and put natural rouge in your cheeks? Why can't you find five minutes every day to do stretching exercises? They are exhilarating and will loosen up your fibres.

What about a new hairdo? Nothing like it to give you an uplift. And your hands? Couldn't you haven't lotioned or creamed them since the season changed. Don't fancy that only winter weather calls for soothing care of your paws. They can grow old faster than one's face. They take a lot of punishment, especially if you are a housewife, do heavy housework, or gardening.

Hair brushing should be part of every girl's nightly beauty routine. Give tresses at least one hundred strokes, using a good brush.

A Large-party Luncheon Menu

OUR appointment was in one of the leading department stores of Philadelphia where we were to put on a stage show that afternoon at a Food Fair. It was also the day of the annual Gimbel Award to the outstanding Philadelphia woman of the year for her service to her city, state, nation and to humanity in general.

The Chef and I both remarked that the food, although served to 600, tasted home-made, and was charmingly served. Here is the menu; it is suited to church banquets, big organization or club dinners, or other large formal gatherings.

Next put ¼ c. soft bread crumbs into a sauce pan, together with ¼ c. hot milk; or if using flaked mushrooms, use the mushroom liquid with enough hot milk to make ½ c. Add 1 egg slightly beaten, 1¼ tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. pepper, ¼ tsp. nutmeg, 1 tsp. thyme or marjoram, 1 tsp. onion salt or scraped onion, and 2 tsp. minced parsley if convenient. P.O.W. HID PLAY IN MODEL YACHT

KEN Attwell explains to his wife how he hid the script of his play "Sayonara" in the hull of a model yacht.

"Sayonara" Reaches London

"Sayonara," a play about life in a Japanese prison camp during the war, has just reached London. Critics have, on the whole, been kind to it—not because it is a great play, nor even a particularly good one, but out of respect for the courage of its author.

Life in a prison camp was never good, even at its best. To a budding playwright, it presented its own peculiar problems. An author, working in the comparative luxury of his flat in London, may lack material, but at least he does not have to devise a plan to hide the script every night from his landlady—even if he owes her rent.

But author Ken Attwell, an Australian P.O.W. found his material most inhospitable towards writers in any form. Naturally, they would have preferred to have no documented evidence about life in one of their camps left lying around. Had they found it they would no doubt have taken personal responsibility for it—and punished the writer into the bargain.

So Ken Attwell built a model yacht—an innocent enough object in the eyes of his gaolers. Into the hull of this yacht he popped the script every night after he had finished working on it.

Now Ken Attwell, his play and the yacht are in London.

Indian Army Thanks To Commonwealth

Field-Marshal Lord Birdwood has received a letter from General K. M. Cariappa, Commander-in-Chief of the Indian Army, paying tribute to those officers and other ranks who were responsible for the building up of the Indian Army. General Cariappa says in his letter:—

I write this to you, as the senior-most serving officer of the Indian Army, on behalf of myself and all Indian officers of our army, to thank you and all officers of the Commonwealth who were responsible for building our army in the manner it has been built, and also for all the help, advice, and guidance you gave us, which trained our officers so well that we were able to replace British officers in our army after our country gained her freedom on August 15, 1947.

We know that foundations of our army were truly and well laid by the blood and sweat of you all and of all those gallant officers who have gone before you. You left behind for us such efficient machinery that, under our command and control, it stood up to the "buffetings" of the many military problems which came after partition.

TRADITIONS

We think also all the British officers and other ranks, who worked in our army from time to time in various capacities for their contribution in this respect.

We have learnt a very great deal from you, our past teachers. I write this to request you to accept and to convey to all the officers in the Commonwealth, who have either physically served in, or with the Indian Army or have been indirectly responsible for our training, the most grateful thanks for all you have done for us. We earnestly hope you will take continued interest in our army as you are still members of it, as indeed you are in spirit.

I hope we will have the pleasure of seeing as many of you as possible here to visit your old units and formations. I am sure I am voicing the "C.O.s" now called Junior commissioned officers, other ranks, and non-combatants in this army, when I say that we want you to come and see us and "hunt and shoot and fish" with us as of old.

I am glad to say that the standard of mess life is today just as high as it ever was. All young officers are more than anxious to see that this standard is not lowered. Our jawans have been and are magnificent. In all my 29 years of service I have never seen their morale higher.

The Gurkhas are just as grand as ever before—under our young lads commanding them—serving splendidly both in duties in aid to the civil power and on active service in the field.

YARD REPORT ON BBC

A report of investigations by Scotland Yard detectives into allegations of bribery concerning the BBC has been given to Sir Theobald Mathew, the Director of Public Prosecutions. The report does not indicate any large-scale bribery.

Chief Det.-Insp. A. Howard compiled the report for Sir Harold Scott, the Commissioner. The decision of the Director of Public Prosecutions on whether there is evidence likely to substantiate prosecutions is expected in about three weeks.

Hoppi-copter Production

A Bournemouth firm is to produce Hoppi-copters—motorcycles of the air—which fly 10 to 15 feet above the ground at up to 50 miles an hour.

The hoppi-copter is simply a seat with an engine beneath and rotor blades above. It weighs 100 lbs. and is expected to sell at £500. Trials with a prototype were completed recently at Hurn airport.

GRADUATES CHOOSE RAF AS CAREER

An increasing number of university graduates are making the Royal Air Force their career.

All undergraduates are deferred from National Service during the period of their studies. When they graduate, however, they are liable for their National Service commitment and many go to the RAF.

They are eligible for three types of commissions—National Service, short service and permanent.

National Service commissions are granted for the 18 months' period of their full-time service in the Education, Technical, Aircraft Construction, Equipment, Secretariat, Medical, Dental, Fighter Control, Physical Fitness and Catering branches and in the RAF Regiment. An additional opportunity for members of University Air Squadrons is that they can obtain National Service commissions in the General Duties (Flying) branch.

Short service commissions are available in a number of branches but, for some, entry must be through the ranks—after graduates are called up.

Graduates of universities have the privilege of being eligible for direct entry to permanent commissions. These are available in the General Duties, Technical, Secretariat and Equipment branches and in the RAF Regiment.

Gordon-Walker Has Talks In Ceylon

Colombo, Aug. 30. Mr Patrick Gordon-Walker, Secretary for Commonwealth Relations, who is spending four days here on his way home from Australia, today had a two-hour official talk with the Prime Minister, Mr Don Stephen Senanayake.

Neither British nor Ceylonese circles would disclose the subjects discussed.

Mr Gordon-Walker said that he would have only one other meeting with Mr Senanayake, and spend the rest of the time "on holiday."

Official quarters in Colombo declined earlier to comment on suggestions that important defence matters would be considered during the talks.—Reuter.

London Diary:

ANNA NEAGLE NEW RECRUIT TO 'FANY'

Newest recruit to the First-Aid Nursing Yeomanry Corps (FANY) is Anna Neagle. The commander and officers of the corps have given her an honorary commission as an Ensign, a tribute to her performance in the film "Odette."

She worked closely with FANY officers while making "Odette"—story of Odette Churchill, one of the 2,000 women secret agents who were in the corps.

As an officer in the corps, Anna Neagle will be entitled to wear uniform, but will receive no salary.

BBC WOMAN PADRE

The RAF's first woman padre—a Congregationalist who is married to an Anglican vicar—is joining the BBC's religious department next month.

She is the Rev. Elsie D. Chamberlain, Minister of the Vineyard Congregational Church, Richmond, Surrey.

Mrs Chamberlain joined the RAF in 1946, resigned her commission in July 1947, when she married the Rev. John Garrington, Vicar of All Saints, Hampton, Middlesex. Husband and wife help with each other's churches.

Her job with the BBC will be part-time. She is 30, a year older than her husband, is tall with brown hair. Mr and Mrs Garrington are now on holiday in Cornwall.

FILM ABOUT CARUSO

A film is to be made on the life of Caruso based on the biography written by his wife. It is reported in Paris.

Records of Caruso's voice will be heard in the film. The part of the singer will be taken by the Italian actor Mario Lanza.

UNWILLING PEER

Mr Quintin Hogg, who at 43 becomes Viscount Hailsham on his father's death, is an unwilling recruit to the House of Lords. He has frequently expressed his disapproval of the hereditary principle.

Oxford Tories have no ready-made candidate to step into Hogg's place as MP.

Tory majority at the election was 300 in a four-cornered fight. Liberal Mr D. Tweddle, who polled 6807 votes, is in the field again. And it is possible that Mr E. Keeling, the Communist, may stand again as he is a local man.

The Socialists are as unprepared as the Tories for a by-election. Their candidate last time, Pakenham, withdrew. Last month, Mr J. T. Huddart, unsuccessful Brighton candidate, nominated in her place, also withdrew for personal reasons.

GOLF COURSE FOR SALE

Some well-known places in the New Forest are coming up for sale. Mr John Morant, who owns nearly 3,000 acres at Brockenhurst, Hampshire, is selling off the semi-urban fringes of his estate.

Already the has sold more than £50,000 worth of property to the tenants. The rest will be auctioned soon. Altogether the sale should bring him well over £100,000.

Among the places to be auctioned are the Brockenhurst Manor golf course, and the New Forest Club (15 tennis courts, two squash courts, ballroom, and so on).

The Morant family took over Brockenhurst Manor in the 18th century. Recently the local authority have taken to spelling their name "Brook"—but the Morants keep to the old "Brook".

Mr Morant is a race horse owner. He is retaining the manor and about 2,500 acres of agricultural and park land.

H.G.'S GRAND-DAUGHTER

Soon to marry: Catherine Anne Wells, grand-daughter of H. G. Wells, and John Walter Slove, an Oxford don.

Miss Wells is dark, 5ft. 6in., aged 21. She is at Oxford herself—at Somerville—and has this year taken her finals. She intends to stay at Oxford another year. Her subject is mathematics. She wants to take a diploma in statistics.

Stoye, who is 33, is an historian. He is a Fellow of Magdalen College. They expect to marry early next year.

Miss Wells's father, George Philip Wells, is a lecturer on zoology at University College, London. He is 48 and H.G.'s eldest son.

His Appreciation

AN enthusiastic spectator is giving a one-man ovation to "Miss Cote D'Azur," representing the southern coast of France, at a bathing beauty contest held in Frankfurt, Germany. She was one of the numerous entrants in appearances being held prior to the selection of "Miss Europe" in Paris next October, and her brief bikini suit caused a storm of front row applause. (Acme).

Burma Veteran Leads Commandos Bound For Korea

Surrey-born Douglas Burni Drysdale, 33-year-old Royal Marine lieutenant-colonel who is leading the R.M. Commando which is being flown from the United Kingdom to Korea, has had plenty of experience of the lightning raids and isolated landings behind the enemy lines his special service unit will be required to undertake on behalf of the United Nations.

He joined the battleship Renown when World War Two broke out and served as a captain with 101 Royal Marine Brigade. After Dunkirk, he went into Combined Operations and by 1943 was brigade major to the 3rd Commando Brigade which was concerned in one of the fiercest battles of the Burma Campaign.

This Brigade, which was composed of two Army Commandos and two Royal Marine units, seized the island of Abukuh off the Arakan coast in January 1945, and then struck at the mainland across beaches that were mined and defended by artillery and machine-guns. To reach the beaches they had to wade through three feet of thick mud, and most of the men had to strip and be hauled ashore by ropes. They then found themselves in mangrove swamps, deep in mud, with the Japanese making suicidal counter-attacks.

Two days of bitter hand-to-hand fighting with that skill, tenacity and courage for which the Commandos are well known, the Brigade seized Hill 170, a narrow wooded ridge which commanded the battlefield of Kangaw.

Immediately after the battle, Lt-Gen. Christison, who commanded the Corps of which the Brigade formed part, issued a special order of the day in which he remarked that the battle of Kangaw had been the most decisive of the whole Arakan campaign, and that it was won was due very largely to the Commandos' magnificent courage on Hill 170. The reputation of the brigade, he said: "For indifference to personal danger, for ruthless pursuit in success and for resolute determination in adversity," had proved an inspiration.

This fierce action was the brigade's last battle. It was withdrawn to India and underwent a course of jungle training in preparation for the next campaign due to be fought in Malaya. Lt-Col. Drysdale was appointed in command of No. 43 R.M. Commando Unit, but the Japanese surrendered before it could take the field again, and it was sent to Hongkong.

Back in the United Kingdom, he served for a time on the staff of the Commandant-General, at the Combined Operations Training Establishment in North Devon, and then as an instructor at the Staff College, Camberley. Last January, he became Chief Instructor of the Royal Marine Officers' School at Plymouth.

This men he is taking to Korea are mostly volunteers and have been selected from the toughest troops in Britain trained in amphibious and commando fighting. Many were battle-hardened in World War Two, and the unit will, in his own words, contain a "mixture of youth and experience."

For reasons of operational security, the size composition and departure and arrival times of the unit are not being announced. During World War Two, these Commandos were self-supporting units of some 450 to 500 men divided into five fighting troops of 80 men apiece with a Headquarters Troop and a Heavy Weapons Troop.

Although the Marines have fought in practically every part of the world since 1041, this will be their first experience of Korea. They have, however, operated several times in China since 1940, and have paid a "visit" to Japan.

They were disappointed at only two things, small congregations and tough meat. "Congregations are not so good here as in America."

"The spirit of the nucleus of worked in the grand and the loyalty of the choir splendid. But on no Sunday has the adult congregation at morning service been more than 100; the number we get in North Plain Field in July and August when people are on holiday.

People here have been most cordial in opening their homes, and we have really seen England from the castle to the cottage. Both parishes were originally reluctant to consent to the exchange, but both have now declared themselves to be very pleased."

COMMANDOS TRY A QUICK-CHANGE ACT

SEFTON DELMER on 'The New Enemy in Disguise'

TOKYO. OF all the markings on the vast map in General MacArthur's Tokyo war room, the most eye-catching is a wide circle drawn around the little village of Pusan, behind the American lines on the Nakdong River.

The circle is in red. That is the colour used by MacArthur's staff to distinguish enemy units. But there is no divisional or regimental number to go with it, as there is with other markings of enemy dispositions.

Inside the red circle there are just three words and a figure: "Refugees command, approximately 30,000."

The red circle on his map around Pusan and those round other refugee-infested areas like it represent the generalissimo's unwilling tribute to the most successful, most dangerous, and simplest of the secret weapons unpacked from the Soviet armoury for the Korean war.

It is a weapon, moreover, which remains effective even today when the Communists in Korea are staggering under blows from the ever-increasing deployment of United States air power against them.

Experts tell me we can look forward to seeing it used more and more whenever the Soviet is opposed to the West.

Three jobs

WHETHER it is a cold war or a shooting war, in Asia or in Europe, the principle of the weapon will be the same. Put in its simplest terms, it is the use of quick-change artist troops—men and women.

In Europe's cold war their job would be to stir up trouble by acting not as Communists or Russians,

MacARTHUR 'RED-RINGS' A VILLAGE

... TRIBUTE TO A KEY WEAPON

but ostensibly as agents of some other Power or authority.

In Korea their main jobs so far have been:

- 1 To infiltrate behind the lines and attack the Americans in the rear. In this they have been successful, we are told on several occasions.
- 2 To act as spies and saboteurs.
- 3 Most important of all to my mind—to cause a conflict between the Americans and the Korean civil population.

Men and women members of this special corps are trained by a special division of the North Korean Communist Army, which acts as the parent organisation for all guerrillas.

There they are taught to assume whatever disguise is most suitable for their mission. One moment they will be in the front line fighting as correctly uniformed soldiers of the North Korean army. Next they will be trying to sneak into the American lines dressed in American steel helmets and those shapeless green fatigues which G.I.s are wearing in Korea.

On one occasion, when they were up against the 25th Division many of whose soldiers are coloured men they went so far as to black their faces like coons in a seaside minstrel troupe.

But the favourite trick is to put on the wide-brimmed straw hat, white homespun coat and jodhpurs of the Korean peasant and join the trek of heavily laden refugees fleeing from the war through the American lines.

As often as not they will leave their arms behind them. There are plenty of arms caches which were prepared before the Communists invaded Korea where they can pick up all they need. Or they can get one of the old peasant women to stack her bundle with weapons and ammunition.

What could be simpler or more normal than for a tired refugee to sit down on a hilltop from which he can see the Americans moving up a road to the front and installing their artillery in the bed of a dried-up stream?

What more natural than that a large party of peasants should cross the mountains by normally unused paths in order to escape from the Communists? I have seen it come off again and again.

It worked

THE successful attack by the Communists on Pohang was largely the work of guerrilla troops disguised as peasant refugees.

In the Weungwan area I came across a battery which had been forced to change its position four times in two days because of the enemy's ability to locate and bombard it before it had settled in.

Then General Hobart Gay, commander of the 1st Cavalry Division gave the order that all refugees were to be moved out of the area within 24 hours and that any Koreans found there after that were to be shot. It worked.

But just think what it means to the Americans to have to regard all Koreans here as enemies. Just try to estimate the political damage to them of having to mark up as hostile the 30,000 men, women and children around Pusan, the vast majority of whom are certain to be genuine refugees.

Nazi praise

WHEN I talked with Goebbels' number one propagandist, Hans Fritzsche, after his acquittal in the Nuremberg trials he told me that Britain's political warfare would have failed completely but for one thing.

"When your agents assassinated Heydrich you forced us to take measures against the whole Czech nation which estranged them from us and drove them into our camp."

The objective of North Korea's Kim Il Sung's quick-change-artist Commandos is to achieve just this and clearly the greatest care has to be taken not to help them.

There is one big consolation, however. If the Korean war continues to go as it has been going these last days, the damage which a Fifth Column coup can do may well become progressively smaller. Especially as it had been prepared to coincide with the last knock-out offensive.

In reply—

KIM IL SUNG, harassed by the disruption of communications in his own territory, and in occupied South Korea, is likely soon to be faced with a strong Fifth Column movement at home.

When you win £20,000—quit!

This is King Farouk's one rule at the Deauville gaming table

BY VARGAS GARDNER

DEAUVILLE. pushed by his royal body-guard, and fairly raced king? It is easy. Take through the restaurant to the wealth of the long mirrored corridor Egyptian monarch, a comptroller to hand out the cash rooms branch.

He has only one rule, and he sticks to it. When he has won £20,000 he retires from the table. Gambling is his one great passion in life.

His arrival at the casino is always dramatic. The advance guard of French police cleaves a way through the thousands of sightseers who nightly gather outside the glass-panelled doors to watch the celebrities.

The sound of tyres two in the baccarat room screaming signals the rapid approach of King Farouk at A brass rail, breast high the wheel of a huge, black, American car.

Before the car has finished swaying he has jumped out, dashed up the stairs.

Ho saunters in

THE croupier sits in the centre of one side of the oval table, his back to the wall. Chandeliers are switched on.

In single file seven wealthy Egyptian business men, who have been invited to play with the king, move round the brass rail. When all is set the king is told.

He saunters into the room and takes a seat on the right of the croupier. A small table is placed by his right arm, and coffee and a bottle of water are set for him.

Play begins. It is chemin de fer. The shoe is passed to the king. He tosses a million-franc chip on to the table and then deals two cards to his opponent and two to himself.

His opponent looks at his cards. If he has a nine or an eight he wins. If he has a five he asks for another card.

The king looks at his cards. If he has a nine or an eight he wins, if not he passes another card to his opponent.

They also win...

THE casino takes a percentage of the winnings. So far it has made 270 million francs more profit this year than for the same period last year. Then, for 12 months' play, it earned 450 million francs.

When the king has his first win he leaves the chip on the table as the stake for the next game.

When he loses heavily he pulls from his wallet his lucky card—the king of diamonds. He puts it in front of him on the edge of the green baize face downwards, then doubles his stakes.

When he wins he laughs heartily—and jokes with the loser.

NEW YORK. COMMUNISTS and their sympathisers are no longer to be allowed to go abroad.

First Paul Robeson was denied a passport. Then Washington told Rockwell Kent, almost as famous for his pro-Communist speeches as for his paintings of the American way of life, that he could not go to Prague.

At the same time the authorities began a campaign to ban Communists from the crews, as well as the passenger lists, of all American ships sailing to foreign ports.

CAPTAIN Lewis Shackelford, a coastguard security officer who promised he will remove every Red from the New York waterfront, forbade 40 of the crews of the liners America and Washington to sail in them.

In one fortnight he has stopped nearly 100 sailing. They are given a chance to defend themselves before a court consisting of representatives of their union, the management, and the Government. But few have won their appeals.

Mr. Truman's Warning To Communist Aggressors

Attacks will be met
With armed defence

Washington, Aug. 30.

President Truman today declared that Communism was violating the peace of the world and warned that "armed aggression" would be met with "armed defence."

In a Labour Day statement, the President declared that it was the purpose of the United States to bring about conditions of peace.

HUNGARIAN CHURCH AGREEMENT

Budapest, Aug. 30.

The Hungarian Foreign Ministry said today that the Roman Catholic Church and the Communist government had signed an agreement under which the clergy promised to acknowledge and support the constitution and the "People's Republic."

The Ministry said Catholic Bishops and government officials had spent eight weeks negotiating the document. It added that the Bishops would support the "movement for peace, condemn war-mongering and use of atomic weapons and consider any government which would use the atom bomb as a war criminal."

On its side, the government promised to return eight Catholic schools which had been seized and to permit them to be used by religious orders for the training and teaching of children.—United Press.

Vatican officials said tonight that they had received "with extreme interest" preliminary reports of the Church-State agreement signed in Budapest, but said they would refrain from comment until the full text of the agreement was in their hands.—United Press.

SERVICEMEN TO GET FAR BETTER PAY

trained men in the armed forces," he declared.

There were too few of them in the Army and Air Force. By increasing the period of national service "we can achieve a rapid increase in our numbers of trained men and, therefore, an increased number of effective fighting formations," he stated.

"To ensure peace we need stronger armed forces as a deterrent against aggression and the only way we can increase our strength quickly is to raise the length of national service."

The Prime Minister admitted that there must "inevitably be an adverse effect" on Britain's standard of life by devoting a larger proportion of the country's resources to defence.

"In safeguarding democracy and the British way of life we have to hold a balance between the needs of defence and the demands of economic stability."

I am certain that we can take care of both if we all do our best," he added.

An official Government paper issued tonight detailing the new measures disclosed that the increase in national service would add about 77,000 trained men to the British forces over the next six months.

The Army would get an extra 55,000, the Air Force 18,000 and the Navy 4,000.

HEAVY COST

Authoritative quarters here estimated that the new pay increases would cost about £68,000,000 annually but a substantial amount would be set back to the Government as income tax which many of the lower ranks will now pay for the first time.

The additions to the three Services, it was pointed out, would be of particular help in strengthening garrisons overseas and in the creation of reserve formations behind them in Britain.

The period of extended service, the official paper stated, will apply to those still serving on October 1, 1950, or were called up thereafter.

No indication was given on the duration of the new scheme, but the official paper observed, "It is the Government's hope that as the regular component of the Services increases, it will be possible to review again the length of full-time national service."

But it added that the results of the review must depend in the main upon developments in the international situation.

FIGURES LOWER

The Government paper said that recruiting figures for the first half of this year showed a continued downward drop.

"In reaching their decision to extend the period of Colour service, the Government have considered the effect upon industry of keeping some 77,000 National Service men in the Force," the paper said.

"Serious though their loss is at a time when additional burdens are being placed on industry the men thus withheld from industry are young and can be spared with less difficulty than those of longer industrial experience," it added.

The Government said that the number did not, in any case, represent a major additional version of manpower to the Forces in relation to the working population as a whole.

The official paper said that the increase in the length of full-time service would be accompanied by a corresponding reduction in the period of reserve service, which would be decreased by six months to three and a half years.

One effect of the extended compulsory service would be to slow down temporarily the building up of Britain's auxiliary service (Territorial Army) by delaying the transfer of men to the Territorials on the completion of conscription duty.

TO ALL RANKS

The Government official paper on pay said that the increases would be given to all ranks of the regular armed Forces, men and women, up to the rank of Brigadier and its equivalent.

In order to encourage highly trained men now on 12-year regular engagements to sign to a further period, substantial re-engagement and extension tax-free bounties would be offered.

Bounties would also be offered in certain conditions to men with recent previous experience who enlist on regular engagements.

But the bounty schemes would end on December 31 next year.—Reuter.

S. Africa Accused Of Preparing To 'Trump Up' Election

Baltimore, Aug. 30.

The influential Baltimore Sun today accused the South African Government of preparing a "trumped-up" election to annex the trust territory of South-West Africa.

In an editorial, the Sun said, "When a country these days tries to annex a neighbour by a rigged election in defiance of the United Nations, it sounds like Communist doings."

KOREAN FIGHTING

condemned and machine-gunned in the whole area.

United States fighter aircraft today had one of their busiest days of the Korean war, the Far East Air Forces headquarters announced here.

One group of F-51 Mustangs strafed and bombed supply lines from Pyongyang, North Korean capital, almost to the Manchurian border.

Small formations of Superforts struck at bridges north of the 38th Parallel.

Flying in ideal weather, F-80 Shooting Star jet fighters, giving close support to ground troops, hit railway trains and started fires in four villages.

F-82 twin Mustangs attacked trains near Kaepong, 30 miles north of Seoul.

B-26 Invader light bombers dropped 1,000-lb. bombs on North Korean supply dumps.—Reuter.

SUPPORT OPERATIONS

Jet fighters took off at 5.15 a.m. today for close support operations against the Communist troops attacking along the northern front in Korea. The Air Force reported that Mustangs followed the jets into the air a few minutes later.—United Press.

NAKTONG BUILD-UP

The Communists were reported this morning to be building up forces along the Naktong River.

The build-up was reported in two main areas, at Pukong and Hyonpung, below Taegu, where the Communists already have up to two regiments on the east bank of the River.

The two-week old Northern bridgehead, the only point where the American River line has been broken, was attacked by the Second Division's 30th Regiment.

Communist hill outposts were destroyed but the bridgehead remained virtually undamaged in Northern hands.

American patrols destroyed five river barges.—Reuter.

Employers Accept A Challenge

London, Aug. 30.

Many London printing firms stopped work today when employers dismissed several thousand workers with whom they were in dispute.

The stoppage, which did not affect national newspapers or Government printers, began after 5,000 compositors, mainly employed on local newspapers and magazines, had refused to lift their ban on overtime.

Their employers—members of the London Master Printers' Association—gave them until noon today to change their minds. When they did not most were discharged.—Reuter.

Washington, Aug. 30.

President Truman will make a 30-minute "Report to the Nation" on Friday night, when he would deliver a "fireside chat" to be carried by all major American radio networks.

It would also be televised. The Presidential Secretary, Mr. Charles Ross, who made the announcement, said that the address would cover a report on the progress of the United Nations forces in Korea, the critical international situation arising out of the fighting there, and the problems on the home front.

Mr. Truman will discuss his proposed economic controls and the tax increase now being debated in the Senate, among other matters linked with the emergency.—Reuter.

Adenauer's Security Proposals

Bonn, Aug. 30.

A secret memorandum from the West German Government setting forth its views on external and internal defence was handed over to the Allied High Commission today.

The High Commissioners were expected to consider the document immediately and probably discuss it at their meeting tomorrow.

Allied officials believed that the West German Chancellor, Dr. Konrad Adenauer, would shortly visit the High Commission to discuss the memorandum.

The memorandum, Allied circles believed, set forth the West German Government's view as recently outlined by Dr. Adenauer favouring a gendarmerie or "protective police" force of, it was thought, 150,000 men to protect the Soviet zone border and to deal with Communist outbreaks in West Germany.

The matter was discussed last week at a secret meeting between the High Commission and Dr. Adenauer.

German political circles said tonight that the memorandum contained four points.

The first proposed that the occupation forces in Germany should be substantially strengthened. The second suggested the formation of a European Army, the third the establishment of a Federal "protective police" and the fourth the ending of the state of war and changes in the Occupation Statute, which would be tantamount to a restoration of Germany's sovereignty.

It is understood that no definite figure was suggested for the protective police force, except that it should be equal in strength to the People's Police Force in the Soviet Zone.—Reuter.

The American Secretary of State, Mr. Dean Acheson, said today that it was up to the United Nations to decide whether its forces should drive beyond the 38th Parallel dividing North and South Korea.

He told a press conference that the United States had tried to make this attitude clear. He suggested that perhaps events might take such a course that the question of crossing the dividing line would solve itself.

He said that by this he meant that there would be no problem if the North Koreans ceased hostilities as demanded by the Security Council and co-operated in working out the unification of Korea.

Mr. Acheson also said that the United States by word and deed was doing its utmost to discourage the Chinese Communists from becoming involved in the Korean fighting.

He said that his Government was stressing the point that backing the North Koreans would be wrong and a defiance of the United Nations Charter and the Security Council.

This attitude was being presented in statements by President Truman and others and was stressed in the State Department's "Voice of America" broadcasts to Europe.

Mr. Acheson repeated the assurance that the United States had no aggressive intentions regarding Formosa or the Chinese mainland.

He warned the Chinese Communists that it would be an act of aggression for anyone to join the North Koreans in the Korean war.

Mr. Acheson declined to say whether the various assurances and warnings recently made in statements by President Truman and himself had been conveyed to the Chinese Communist Government in Peking through diplomatic channels.

He said, however, that these points had been made clear by President Truman in Voice of America broadcasts and other public announcements.—Reuter.

'Pessimistic Pete' Skips Finesse, Wins

By OSWALD JACOBY

"THIS is going to take me a couple of seconds," warned Pessimistic Pete.

"Take your time," said West. "I don't have to get to work until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning."

It was a difficult hand to make, since all of the cards in the red suits were badly placed for declarer. However, Pessimistic Pete saw a way to make his contract in spite of such bad breaks.

The opening lead had been the king of clubs, and dummy had won with the ace. Pete, playing the South hand, then drew two rounds of trumps.

The danger lay in the fact that South might lose three diamonds and lose heart. The less could be avoided if the ace of diamonds happened to be in the East hand, or if an extra heart trick could be set up in the dummy. Pete pessimistically suspected that he would find everything wrong. He therefore set about to find a way to make the contract, even though luck was against him.

After some thought he cashed the ace and king of hearts, and then returned the jack of clubs from dummy. On this card he discarded his remaining low heart.

West was obliged to win the trick with the queen of clubs—precisely as Pete had planned. And there was now no way for West to defeat the contract. If West returned another club, dummy could ruff while South discarded a diamond.

West actually returned a diamond, hoping to collect three tricks in the suit. This lead, however, permitted South to win a trick with the king of diamonds.

The point of discarding the heart was that Pete was safe even if West had held more hearts. When West took the queen of clubs, only the queen and ten of hearts were out, and South was safe no matter who held these cards.

If West could lead the queen of hearts, South could ruff at once. Later on he would discard a diamond on the jack of hearts.

If West could lead the ten of hearts, South would play dummy's jack. That would either win at once or would bring out the queen. In the latter case South would ruff and would later get a discard on dummy's established seven of hearts.

It is important to note that Pete would have lost his contract by taking the "normal" finesse in hearts. East would win and return the queen of diamonds. This would yield four defensive tricks in all.

REGULATIA

By T. O. HARE

IN the admirably-run state of Regulatia, smoking—like all other forms of recreation—was strictly controlled and effectively discouraged. A smoker may buy cigarettes for the purpose of only using them for the purpose of the cigarette and the once he pays depends on the number he buys and the very strictly. Hence very few smokers can afford to smoke more than three cigarettes a day. Many buy one or two and then for the week-end, though this in itself constitutes an offence.

The purchaser of two cigarettes pays 20 ticks for them (the tick is one-hundredth of a dollar), but four cigarettes cost not less than 40 ticks; an extravagance which constitutes an offence in accordance with the Penal Code. Boards of official formula.

What do you suppose is the price of 20 cigarettes in the maximum number obtainable in one day?

BY THE WAY

by Beachcomber

NOW that a mouse named Geraldine "with a small contralto voice" has broadcast on the American radio, we shall not have to wait long for pictures of "Geraldine arriving at Northolt," with one hand on her hip, and a saucy little spring hat tipped over one eye.

Then we shall read, "Geraldine was driven in a luxurious closed trap to the West End hotel where she has a suite behind the wainscote. She was too tired to talk to reporters. The secretary, covered with checkered, Geraldine has just had a fight with a London mouse, who got in unobserved by the Management. Don't confuse all that squeaking with her singing voice."

Contratempo

WHILE the Trio were performing in the foyer of the—, the radio in one of the lounges played a particularly loud bit of music. This upset the rhythm of the Trio.

Ashtara shifted the plank on his belly, on which Kazzuloh fell off his end of the seesaw. In the ensuing scuffle, one end of the plank banged through a glass door. Guests screamed.

Someone shouted, "It's a stick-up!" The other end of the plank, out of control, knocked two card-sharps off their feet. Kazzuloh landed in the lap of a huge dowager, and slipped off on to her dog, which bit a house-detective in the calf. A manager, hastening to the scene, fell over Blammy.

Otherwise, everything was all right.

A flying breakfast set

IT is now reported from Mexico that the men 23 inches high who landed on the flying saucer were not, as was first thought, natives of the planet Venus, but Brazilian elves. The saucer turned out to be a stink-bomb. The twenty-eight-footers who stepped out of a flying disk in Madagascara are thought to be abominable snowmen. Meanwhile a whole breakfast set, led by a crowded teapot, was seen near Tashkent. Observers said that tiny gipsies waved from the teapot. They were milking the size of ants. The soup-tureen which crashed at Meknes was full of tomato soup.

AMERICA MAKES THIRD LOAN TO YUGOSLAVIA

Washington, Aug. 30. The United States has agreed to lend another $15,000,000 to Yugoslavia, the Secretary of State, Mr. Dean Acheson, announced today. Yugoslavia already has received two $20,000,000 loans in the last 12 months.

Mr. Acheson told a press conference that the Export-Import Bank had approved the loan, bringing to $55,000,000 the total American advances to Marshal Tito's Government.

In reply to a question, Mr. Acheson said that he was not yet aware if Yugoslavia had asked for military as well as economic aid, but he added that the United States Government understood the Yugoslav attitude on the subject.

Answering inquiries today, the Export-Import Bank said that it had agreed in principle to the new loan of $15,000,000 to Yugoslavia.

Officials said negotiations were under way to determine what American goods should be bought with the money. They said the problem was to determine what items were most essential to the Yugoslav economy. That would mean the purchase of mass production goods and raw materials.

While details are not complete, the loan is expected to carry the same 2-1/2 percent a year interest than applied to the two previous loans.—Reuter.

COTTON HIGHEST IN 31 YEARS

New York, Aug. 30. Cotton futures showed strength today for the third session in a row and achieved the highest level in 31 years. Traders appeared to be more inflationary minded, drawing encouragement from the higher trend in a long list of other commodity markets.

The prospects of a much smaller crop this year and the expected large increase in domestic consumption and exports heightened inflationary feeling, brokers said.
